

The Enchanted Forest

Adventure

By Samuel

They rached mories they fagrestant a magical forest tr effieet wnd are spotted stackert and wondrois things happeneds.

As they ventured deeper, they heard a tiny voice call out, "Help! Help!" ... Thinky for receiving me, the raboit said gratefully.

The friends followed Thumper through the forest, across a sparkling stream, anb over is a stone path. Soon they saw a ba- beautiful castle The distance, surrounded by

They rucked over and found a small raboit trapped under a log. "Thank you I cm "Thumper. I cam aaake gre, ya oy coree," and arrounds by bads was said becaning inrov."

As the rastle, an owl awering ventairt's

Mo spotted the cave where the troll lived

Mia had an idea. "Maybe we can trade with him," she whispered.

"Oh, greedy troll," Mia called out, "Would you trade that Crystal for this bag of shiny gold coins?"

The troll's eyes sparkled greedily. "Deal!" he grumbled, grabbing the coins.
Leo quickly snatched the Crystal of Light while the troll counted the coins.

Leo quickly snatched the Crystal of Light while the troll counted the coins.

Mia had an idea. "Maybe we can trade with him," she whispered.

"Oh, greedy troll,, Mia called out,
"Would you trade that Crystal for this bag of shiny gold coins?"

The troll's eyes sparkled greedily.
"Deal!" he grumbled, grabbing

The friends ran out of the cave, the troll roaring angrily behind them.

The friends ran out of the cave, the troll roaring angrily behind them.

Back at the castle, the owl and the forest creatures cheered. "You did it." (the owl exclaimed as the Crystal of Light, began to glow brightly again.

"The forest is saved!" Mia declared as magic sparkled around them. You're true heroes!

Mia and Leo thanked the owl and the rabbit as the forest regained its enchantment. It was time to go home. "We'll never forget our enchanted forest adventure," Mia said. "Me neither," Leo agreed. They gave Thumper a hug before heading back to their village, leaving behind a forest filled with magic and happiness.

The friends ran out of the cave, the troll roaring angrily behind them.

Back at the castle, the owl and the forest creatures cheered. "You did it." (the owl exclaimed as the Crystal of Light, began to glow brightly again.

"The forest is saved!" Mia declared as magic sparkled around them. You're true heroes!

Mia and Leo thanked the owl and the rabbit as the forest regained its enchantment. It was time to go home. "We'll never forget our enchanted forest adventure," Mia said. "Me neither," Leo agreed. They gave Thumper a hug before heading back to their village, leaving behind a forest filled with magic and happiness.

Thank you for reading
The Enchanted Forest Adventure!

Draw your favorite part of the story!

We'd love to see your pictures! Share them with us and let us know what you think of the story.

Another adventure coming soon!

See you next time!